No. 1.—Translation.

London, May 23, 1802.

MY LORD,
The 10th article of the treaty of Amiens which fixes the new organization of the order of Malta having prescribed various measures, to the execution of which it is necessary that the two principal contracting powers should concur, the First Consul has named General Vial as Minister Plenipotentiary to the Order and Island of Malta, for the purpose of concert-ing with the person whom His Britannic Majesty shall appoint for that purpose, respecting the execution of arrangements agreed upon in the late Treaty. General Vial will set out on his destination as soon as your Excellency shall have informed me of His Majesty's intentions, and of the choice he may make.

I have the honor to be, &c.

OTTO.

No. 2.

Downing Street, May 23, 1802.

SIR,
In answer to your letter of yesterday in which you communicate to me the nomination by the First Consul of General Vial to be Minister Plenipotentiary of the French Republic, to the order of St. John of Jerusalem; I have the honor to inform you that the King has been pleased to appoint Sir Alexander Ball to be his Majesty's Minister to the Order. Sir Alexander Ball will shortly proceed to Malta, and will be instructed to concert with general Vial the necessary measures, for carrying into effect the arrangements relative to that island which are stipulated in the 10th Article of the Definitive Treaty of Peace.

I have the honor to be, &c.

HAWKESBURY.

M. Otto, &c. &c. &c.

No. 3.

Extract of a Dispatch from Lord St. Helens to Lord Hawkesbury, dated St.
Petersburgh, April 23, 1802.

I have reason to hope that the first impression that had been produced here by certain parts of the arrangement relative to Malta, have been removed; and that His Imperial Majesty may even be ultimately induced to guaranty the whole of the arrangement; provided that the steps which have been taken towards the election of a new Grand Master, according to the mode suggested by his court be considered as fulfilling what is required on that head by the latter part of the paragraph of the 10th Article of the Treaty of Amiens, and consequently that no new election for that office is to take place in the manner pointed out by the former part of the same stipulation.

No. 5.

Downing Street, June 5, 1802.

SIR,

I informed you in my dispatch No. 10, that M. Otto had made an official communication to me, that Gen. Vial was appointed by the First Consul Minister Plenipotentiary to the order of St. John of Jerusalem. Sir Alexander Ball has been in consequence invested with the same character by his Majesty. He will proceed immediately to Malta, and he will receive instructions to concert with Gen.

present treaty, are invited to return to Malta as soon as that exchange shall have taken place: they shall there form a general chapter, and shall proceed to the election of a Grand Master, to be chosen from amongst the natives which preserve Languages, if no such election shall have been already made since the exchange of the ratifications of the preliminary articles of peace."

The object of this paragraph was that in the event of an election having taken place subsequent to the exchange of the ratifications of the preliminary articles of peace, and antecedent to the conclusion of the definitive treaty, that election should be considered as valid; and though no mention is made in the article of the proclamation of the Emperor of Russia, soon after his accession to the throne, by which the Knights of the Order were invited to assemble, and to proceed to the election of a Grand Master, the stipulation in question evidently referred to the contingency of an election taking place on the continent in consequence of that proclamation.

You will inform the French Government that his Majesty is ready to consider the election which has lately taken place at St. Petersburg, under the auspices of the Emperor of Russia, to be valid, according to the stipulation in the 11th article.

His Majesty has no other object in the whole of this transaction, than that the 10th article of the treaty may be carried into complete execution with as little difficulty as possible.

As the 13th paragraph in the 10th article stipulates that the governments of Austria, Russia and Prussia, should be invited to accede to the arrangements respecting Malta, it is desirable that the French Government should instruct without delay their ambassadors or ministers at Vienna, Petersburg and Berlin, to make, conjointly with his Majesty's ministers at those courts, an official communication desiring the accession of those powers to the arrangements relative to Malta in the Definitive Treaty; by which it is provided that the independence of the island, and the other stipulations, shall be under the guarantee of those powers, in conjunction with his Majesty, the French government, and the King of Spain. I have the honor to be &c.

(Signed) HAWKESBURY.

Anthony Merry, Esq. &c. &c.

No. 6.

Extract of a dispatch from Anthony Merry, Esq. to Lord Hawkesbury, dated Paris, June 17, 1802.

I have now the honor to transmit to your Lordship, inclosed copy of an answer which reached me last night (though dated eight days back) from the French Minister, to the note verbale which I delivered to him, containing His Majesty's propositions respecting the execution of some points of the arrangements relative to Malta contained in the 10th article of the Definitive Treaty of Peace.—You will find the entire acquiescence of this government to those propositions expressed in a very satisfactory manner.

(Inclosure referred to in No. 6.)

His Britannic Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary has the honor to transmit herewith to Citizen Talleyrand Minister for the Foreign Affairs of the French Republic, the "Note Verbal" of the communication he has been ordered to make to him by his Government, who are desires that the proposals it contains may be acceptable to the French Government; and they may be assured that the British Government in making these proposals have no other object in view than to facilitate in the easiest manner the execution of the Treaty of Amiens, and to act in this respect in perfect harmony with the French Government."

Mr. Merry has the honor to renew on this occasion, the assurances of his high consideration for M. Talleyrand.

(Signed)

ANT. MERRY.

Paris, 8th June, 1802.

The Citizen Minister for Foreign Affairs will find inclosed a List of suffrage obtained from several Priorities of the order of St. John of Jerusalem, for the election of a Grand Master which has been received from St. Petersburg by the British Government, with the Notice that these were agreed amongst themselves,

P. shall select

His Britannic Majesty on his part is willing to consider an election so made as valid according to the stipulations of the 10th article of the Treaty of Amiens.

His Majesty therefore is ready to acknowledge in quality of Grand Master, the person whom the Pope shall think proper to fix upon, from amongst the names contained in that list.

His Majesty has no other end in view in this than to see the 10th article of the Treaty of Amiens duly fulfilled, and the arrangement it contains executed with as little difficulty as possible.

It is stipulated by the 13th paragraph of the same Article, that the Austrian, Russian, and Prussian Governments, shall be solicited to accede to the said arrangement.

The British Government is of opinion that it might be proper for that of France to send without delay instructions to their Ministers at Vienna, Petersburg, and Berlin to make conjointly with His Britannic Majesty's Ministers a communication to those Powers in which the independence of the island, and the other stipulations relative thereto, are placed under the protection and guarantee of those Powers conjointly with their Britannic & Catholic Majesties, and the French Republic.

Translation.

The undersigned, Minister for Foreign Affairs, has the honor to transmit to M.
Merry, His Britannic Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary, his answer to the Note Verbale which he addressed to him on the Eighth Prairial. He doubts not that His Majesty's Ministers will see in this answer a new proof of the constant dispositions of the First Consul to come to an agreement with the English Government, for the security and facilitating the execution of the respective clauses of the treaty which has re-established Peace between the two States.

The undersigned has the honor to renew to M. Merry the assurance of his consideration.

CHA. MAU. TALLEYRAND.

Paris, 20th Prairial Year 10.

[The Minister for Foreign Affairs of the French Republic has received the communication which has been made to him by His Britannic Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary of the list of the Candidates nominated by the votes of the different Priorities of the Grand Mastership of the Order of Malta and he has submitted to the First Consul the proposal concerted between the Priorities of the Order, and approved by His Britannic Majesty, of submitting (pro hac vice) to His Holiness the choice amongst the proposed Candidates.

The First Consul has no other object in whatever relates to the order of Malta, than to see the 10th Article of the Treaty of Amiens duly executed and to remove all the obstacles which might render that execution tardy or difficult. He moreover desires equally with his Britannic Majesty, that France and England should act in concert, in order the better to secure the independence and the organization of the order of Malta. He therefore con-fents that the choice of its Grand Master, from the Candidates proposed by the vote of the Priorities, should for this time be submitted to His Holiness.

As to the 13th paragraph of the same Article, respecting the accession of the Powers, the First Consul thinks with his Britannic Majesty, that the powers should be invited to give their consent to the arrangements agreed upon; and the French Ministers at the Court of Austria, Russia, and Prussia, shall consequently receive orders to take, conjointly with his Britan-nic Majesty's Ministers, the necessary steps for obtaining the accession provided by the 10th Article of the Treaty of Amiens.]

July 4th, in lat. 26, 13, long. 73, 42, saw a sail to the N. W. which gave chase, and in about two hours came within two miles, and fired three shot at us, shewing a Spanish ensign and pendant, in about half an hour she gave over the chase, not being able to keep up with us. She was a corvette built ship, bright copper bottom, and apparently 24 guns.

RUMOR OF PEACE!

We have been favored with the following extract of a letter from a respectable merchant in New York, written at the moment of the departure of the Mail.—We leave our readers to judge of the degree of credit due to its contents:

"The Boston Post arrived just now, with several letters, announcing a Peace between England and France, Bonaparte having acceded to the British demands. So says report this minute.

(Rel's Gaz.)

GENERAL BOWLES.

We have received, per the Julia, arrived at the Lazaretto, from New Orleans, the "Moniteur de la Louisiane," to the 12th June, from which we have translated the following article:—Phil. Pap.

New Orleans, 10th June, 1803.

Bowles was brought here this day a prisoner. He came into town at half after 12, and was immediately conducted to the Government House. He was accompanied by some Indian Chiefs. The Governor sent him to the bar racks, where he is under a strong guard.

Extract of a letter from New Orleans, dated 12th June, 1803.

"Two days ago, capt. Collins arrived here with Gen. Bowles, who has been delivered up to the Spaniards, by the Indians in the American interest, at the instigation of our agent there, Col. Hawkins. He is in the fort St. Charles, ironed, and will (so says report) be sent to Havana in a day or two. He threatens vengeance against the Americans if he ever gets his liberty again.

Captain Morrel of the French ship Victory, arrived at New York, in 14 days from the Cape, informs, that General Rochambeau arrived there three days previous to his sailing, with 1200 troops from Port Republic, where he had established his head quarters. The news of war had not been officially received at the Cape; but reports had come from various quarters of a strong probability of the event, which excited great consternation. The markets for American produce had taken a rapid rise. Flour was from 15 to 18 dollars, and provisions generally in proportion.

Extract of a letter, received by the John Morgan, from an American gentleman of Boston, at present at London, dated May 16, 1803.

"This letter will go by the same vessel that carries Mr. King to America. He of course will give his fellow citizens a variety of information, which the present situation of Europe must render highly interesting. Mr. Williams, the former Consul, has been left Charge des Affairs, and we think that Mr. Munroe is to succeed as Ambassador. This war will be carried on with great acrimony on both sides.—France is eager for the destruction of a mighty Monarchy, and the English have every thing to lose, which has proved salutary for centuries; the contest is unequal, and of necessity with not the United States to be too co-towards England; for England is in fact fighting the battles of America against most dangerous and powerful foe.

"The following is a curious and important fact, which I have from good authority, and which I rather think has not reached you. Early this spring a certain gentleman was instructed to negotiate with Louis the 18th, for a complete renunciation of his right to the Kingdom of France, (in favor of Bonaparte) and for the use of his influence to induce his brothers and relatives to sign a deed of renunciation, the object to him to do it were power. A full, complete, and permanent establishment of him, and he land. Russia and Prussia were not to be backward in the plot, they would give up some of their fopils of Poland to the new king, and in consequence Prussia was to be recompensed with Hanover and some few imperial cities. Russia was to have some of the fine fruitful Provinces of Turkey; and France, out of the wreck of the Ottoman Empire, was to take Egypt. The offer was made Louis 18th, and he rejected it with disdain and contempt. I think you may firmly depend on the main fact, and the circumstances are not far from the truth."

Extract of a letter from a mercantile house in Liverpool to another in Baltimore, dated May 19.

"The effect (of the war) on trade has been a farther advance of upland cottons to 14 and 14½d per lb. and holders very stiff; but there is no alteration in sea-islands or other fine cottons, owing to the general opinion that they are already high. Rum has advanced 6d per gallon; wheat about 4d per bushel, and Sugars from 1s to 4s. per cwt. on our last quotations, and looking up. In other articles little doing yet, and prices unsettled—but in our next, we hope it will be in our power to give you more particular, as well as comprehensive, information."

Extract of a letter from Curacao, 5th June.

"An English sloop of war, the Pirram, who arrived here a few days since, with a prize (supposed in caband trade) has been refused permission to depart. She was all ready yesterday for sailing, but the government frigate opposed it, and every person expects an engagement would ensue; but an English capt. had more prudence than to attempt with a handful of men to oppose the whole force of this place. The fort if well fought, would be enough to prevent her departure (exclusive of a frigate and two other government vessels) All were yesterday at quarters. She has now Dutch officers actually on board, and will no doubt be made a prize. The inhabitants favorable to the British, anxiously wait the event. This circumstance I suspect will be the occasion of soon giving the island a new master."

We have received the Mississippi Herald printed at Natchez, to the 14th ult. from which we extract Prices Current, and one or two minor articles.

Authentic Anecdote.—The following anecdote is this moment communicated to us, in a manner so direct, and from a source so respectable, as leaves no room to doubt its strict correctness:—

A French emigrant preferred residing in this country to hazarding his safety on the general amnesty; but afterwards received a special invitation, accompanied with sufficient assurances from Talleyrand, by the direction of Bonaparte, and returned to France. A letter lately received from him contains a passage, of which the following is believed to be a pretty correct translation:—"The Government is not very different from the ancient regime, excepting as to the freedom of speech, as to which the Government will give no assistance."

hand writing, containing the following caution—"Beware how you converse about things that do not concern you; beware how you meddle with the affairs of Government; but above all, beware how you quote as precedent here the Jacobin Government of America."

[N. Y. Evening Post.]

POLITICAL SKETCHES.

No. II.

Such the craft of some, the blindness of men, and the selfishness of most, that an immortal republic would be as great a miracle, as an immortal man. As in nature, so in all political bodies, there are seeds of inevitable dissolution; which, in some, operate slower, in others, more rapidly. An absolute despotism, as it enervates the human faculties and spreads a deadly torpor throughout the whole political frame, sometimes lasts and continues uniform for many ages; a mixed monarchy balances between the prerogative of the crown and the privileges of the people, and so long as this balance is maintained in nearly an even poise, the constitution is preserved; while a republic originating from and guided by the will of the people, at the same time that it seems to be the only legitimate form, has, of all kinds of government, been the most inconstant and the least durable. The humours of the people have changed perpetually from one extreme to another: they have been driven hither and thither by violent gusts and currents; so that governments depending entirely on the popular will, after a series of fluctuations and wild disorders, have suddenly expired in horrible convulsions.

By the force of attraction, innumerable particles of matter are united, and remain closely compacted together: obedient to the laws of gravitation, the planets, each one keeping its proper place, revolve round their common centre, the sun, in regular and uniform tracks: hence there is order in the system. So men, were they generally well informed and well disposed, each one bending his efforts to the promotion of the public interests, might be easily held together by a government that should impose no other bands, but silken cords. But from blindness; still more from the conflict of various perverse passions; and most of all from the constant and violent influence of the selfish affections; men, like particles of matter loosened from the laws of attraction, are driven wide from the general interest, which should be their common centre; or more properly speaking, they place their individual interests in a hostile competition with it: factions and confusions, in a free government ensue; horrid despotism closes the drama.

Republican principles are undoubtedly true in theory. All legitimate civil power is derived from the people: it is given in trust, to be exercised for their general interests; and at their will and pleasure it is revocable. Happy would it be for the world, were there wisdom and virtue enough among mankind to vindicate and support these principles and to build upon them permanent systems of government: but alas! all the experiments, heretofore made, have sadly failed. The age of man three score years and ten, is short; but the duration of free republics have usually been much shorter. After a very few years of existence, under violent spasms aggravated by the poisonous drugs both of ignorant empirics and artful impostors, they have gone down to the tomb. On strict principles, "All men are born free and equal," as to natural rights. Hence, exclusive privileges, hereditary titles and authority, and the usual powers and appendages of royalty, are intrinsements on the natural rights of the people: yet were all the blood royal destroyed, the nations of the earth would quickly find masters; who would seize and exercise the power of kings, whether invested with royal titles, or called by the names of Shaditholders, Protectors, Consuls.

A century and half ago, the world of king was so odious to the people, that some of the monarchs at the transported were they at the event of the restoration of monarchy, that, (according to an eminent historian) there were some who actually died of joy.

In our own country, the experiment of a free republican government has been and is now making under several greater advantages, than perhaps it ever had in any part of the world before: these are recognised with pleasure, and will be particularly noticed hereafter.

A HINT!

I WOULD inform the person who cut loose and bore away the five trunk KEYS from the manufactory door, yesterday, that he was spied from an opposite window, and known. Now, perhaps, it will be prudent for him to stir himself, in his line, of opening trunks, because the Keys must be returned before next Monday morning. If they are, I shall neither ask, nor answer questions about him:—if not, his "good name" shall be printed, and the law be put in immediate force against him, in all its rigours, without respect to persons, or the ready plea of its being done jocofely. It is no joke at all.

A VALUABLE MILL FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his MILL, known by the name of Clifton Mill, within two and an half miles of Dumfries, on the waters of Quantico, which is as constant a stream as any in this part of the country, and in an exceeding healthy situation; very conveniently situated to a fine wheat country, not being more than half a mile out of the way, in going to Dumfries, from the main road leading from Friquier Court-House, Centerville &c. (and by some thought not any out of the way at all) and a very good road to it. There are, if the purchaser chooses, 227 1/2 acres of land which may go with mill, (except one acre which will be reserved) or a smaller quantity as may be agreed on. The mill is an over-shot, with a wheel of 20 feet 9 inches and 4 feet head, with two pair of Stones. One pair of French burrs of 5 feet, the other of Cologne, with every apparatus necessary for carrying on merchant business to the best advantage. The mill house is fifty long and twenty seven feet wide, two stories high, with a small kiln for drying corn, a good barn, stable, cow house and lumber shed adjacent to the mill. A convenient corn house, (not quite finished) with a kitchen and 7 years past. There are young orchards of peach and it was supposed had not this spring, upwards of 100 might have been who

ENTITLED
THE MERCURY.

BY BRADFORD AND TRESS.

THE Public have been for many years afflicted with the demon of pay, and it has been the constant practice of interested demagogues to inflame the passion as much as possible, by artful tales. The plan on which the MERCURY will be printed shall be IMPARTIAL; we shall confine ourselves to the bare Statement of facts, concerning the politics of our country.

THE Editor's utmost endeavors will be exerted, to render it in some degree conducive to the attainment of knowledge, as well as the communication of news, to enlighten the understanding—to aid in the cause of virtue and religion.

IMPROVEMENTS in Agriculture and Domestic Economy; Arts and Sciences—Poetry; Anecdotes; Prices Current; Appointments; Marriages; Deaths, &c. will claim our attention.

WE shall have (weekly) an opportunity of giving News, Foreign and Domestic, as early as any printer in the United States. Also, being contiguous to the seat of the General Government and giving IMPARTIAL political information we hope that a liberal and enlightened community, will patronize this our first attempt.

CONDITIONS.

THE MERCURY will be printed Weekly, on a fair and large sheet, with an elegant type.

Subscription, Two Dollars and 50 Cents per Annum, payable on the receipt of the first number.

Patrons in town, to be furnished on the day of publication; others agreeable to directions.

Those who obtain eight subscribers, shall be entitled to the ninth, gratis.
